CALLS FOR HELP WERE IN VAIN

Emmitsburg Man Caught by High Waters Near that Town Calls for Help. Calls Heard but not Answered.

John Hoke, boss carpenter of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, was drowned as a result of the high water, following Thursday's torrential rains. Mr. Hoke lives about 2 miles from Emmitsburg and to get to his home he had to cross Tom's Creek. It is said that while in Emmitsburg on Wednesday night he imbibed too freely and was taken from town by a friend, and when it was thought safe for him to proceed alone he was left by his friend, who returned to Emmitsburg. Thursday Hoke was missing all day and a search was made for him.

Not until late Thursday night was it learned that a small boy had seen Hoke along the creek in the morning clinging to a bush and calling for help. The little fellow offered no help, and then the water was about waist deep around the man. The boy did not report the matter until night.

The supposition is that after being left by his friend, Hoke slept along the road and near the creek. During the night the rain and the high water came and he found himself surrounded by water and in a dazed condition, and was unable to save himself.

Thursday night a search was made for his body along the creek, and it was not until Friday morning that the body was discovered at Sister's Dam, by a party of men of Emmitsburg and college students. The body had been washed in a field and was left by the receding waters.

Coroner M. F. Shuff was called, and he went to the scene. After ascertaining the facts, he deemed an inquest unnecessary, considering death due to accidental causes.

Mr. Hoke is survived by his wife, and one daughter, Mrs. Warthen, the latter residing in Hagerstown. A brother, Jacob Hoke, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Scepter, of Emmitsburg, also survive.

HENRY WISE

Former Resident of Near Abbottstown Died at Spring Grove.

Henry Wise, a retired farmer and well known citizen of Spring Grove, died at his home Wednesday, at 3:35 p. m., of acute indigestion. Mr. Wise was a resident of near Ziegler's post-office, on the Gettysburg pike, near Abbottstown until about two years ago. He was aged fifty-six years and six months.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Frances C. Wise; five children, Mrs. Maud Trout, Hanover; James A. Wise, York; Chauncey A. Wise, Houston, Texas; Sebastian D. and Theresa R. Wise, at home; and the following brothers and sisters: John Wise, Williamsport; Michael and Frederick Wise, Minneapolis; Mrs. Henrietta Brown, Williamsport, and Mrs. Clara Miller, East Berlin.

APPLER-MEHRING

John Appler and Miss Mehring Married in Littlestown.

John Appler, of Newark, N. J., son of Ex-Register and Recorder Jacob A. Appler and Mrs. Appler, of Gettysburg, and Miss Clara H. Mehring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Mehring, of Littlestown, were married March 25 at the home of the bride by Rev. John J. Hill, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Littlestown. Mr. and Mrs. Appler left after the ceremony for Newark, where he is a successful school teacher.

EXPERIENCES IN OMAHA TORNADO

Edward Eckenrode Writes of Terrifying Experiences in Sunday's Tornado at Omaha. Narrow Escapes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eckenrode of Omaha have written to their parents in Gettysburg, graphic accounts of their experiences during the tornadoes and storms of last Sunday. Mr. Eckenrode in a letter to his mother, Mrs. C. E. Eckenrode, of West High street, says:

"All of Sunday afternoon we saw heavy clouds gathering over the hills west of us and saw the funnel-shaped cloud but not having seen a cyclone or tornado previously did not know the sign of one. Parkinsons, (Clara Hess, of York), were here for dinner and went home at five o'clock and wanted us to go with them but we stayed at home.

"About six o'clock we heard the awful roaring and rushed to the west window where we saw all of a tornado I ever wish to see. I called to Ella to get into the cellar as quickly as possible and followed after her.

When we reached the landing going to the cellar one side of the storm had struck our house but only on the outside of the swirl. We got only a brushing with the tail which didn't so much as break our windows. However, we saw the funnel come over the hill, breaking the flag and pole from the County Home, two blocks from us, and saw a ball of lightning traveling along the railroad. That was the last view of it before going to the cellar and it was the blackest and fiercest thing I ever saw.

"Parkinsons got home in safety but they had been there only a short time when the storm came. Mr. Parkinson had gone to bed and as he slipped on a few clothes his wife picked up the balance and together they started for the cellar just as the branch of a tree came through a window.

"They reached the first landing of the cellar steps when the house cracked and by time they got into the cellar it had gone over their heads into kindling wood. Some pieces of flying debris struck them, making only black and blue marks, and a few minutes later they crawled out over the foundation, ran about two blocks to where Mr. Parkinson got additional clothing and they then returned to the house. The clouds gathered again and Clara—Mrs. Parkinson—wanted to lie down in Beemis Park to die.

"Everybody ran again for their lives but it resulted only in a terrific rain storm. After the wind had subsided we came from the cellar to gaze upon the western sky. I remarked that it was clear and that the sky was getting red from the sunset but a few minutes later the whole cliff beyond was in flames and it looked as though one big sheet of fire and black smoke was coming, instead of wind. This time we huddled on the stairway, saying the rosary and waiting for it to take us. It turned out, however, to be the houses burning over the hill from us. Only four blocks from us all the houses went down, and many burned, but the rain sort of settled things.

"Parkinsons were digging all of Monday for some of their things. Last night (Monday) it got terribly black again but resulted in a big snow storm with two inches on the ground and still snowing and blowing.

"Some people are not afraid when the American flag is at the head of anything but it did not alleviate my fear in the least to see the spout of wind twist the flag and pole from the County Home and bring it directly toward our house. However, there were larger articles than the flag coming along at the same time."

Mr. Eckenrode is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Eckenrode, of West High street, and Mrs. Eckenrode is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brinkerhoff, of Baltimore street. They have a wide circle of friends and acquaintances here who will rejoice in their fortunate escape and to whom the account of their experiences will be of the greatest interest.

AMICABLY SETTLED

Wife Gets Half of Pension Money. Husband Pays Costs.

Aaron McClain, of Berwick township, who was arrested on Wednesday on a warrant issued by Squire Sell, on oath of his wife, Mary E. McClain, charging him with desertion and non-maintenance, was given a hearing before the Justice Friday. After the hearing, the case was amicably settled by McClain agreeing to give his wife half of his pension money, and pay the cost of prosecution.

KILLED IN FALL FROM HIS WAGON

Well Known Farmer Falls from Wagon to be Dragged along the Road. Died later from his Injuries.

William Nesbit, aged 67 years, a farmer well known about York Springs, East Berlin and other towns in the eastern part of the county, was killed by a fall from a wagon which he sustained while driving through Wellsville, Friday, at 12:30 p. m. He was the third member of his family who met violent deaths, a brother, Harrison, about six years ago falling from a wagon load of wood, and another brother, Louis, being found dead in a field near his home.

Mr. Nesbit was returning to his home with a wagon load of phosphate, which he had purchased at Dillsburg. When he arrived in front of the Wellsville National Bank, he fell from the seat alighting on his head, which, as his body fell over to the side, struck in between the wheel and the ground, stopping the wheel which pushed the head over the ground for a considerable distance.

The injured man was taken to a physician's office but efforts to revive the man were without avail. He died at 1:30 p. m., of concussion of the brain. William Mochlin was attracted by the accident, but was not an actual witness. When he looked the wagon had cleared the body. He carried the body to the physician's house. A neighbor conveyed it to his home.

The funeral will be held at 10 a. m., Monday, with services at the home and the Mt. Airy church.

He is survived by a wife and seven children, also by two brothers. He was a son of Clayton Nesbit, a well-known mathematician, and has numerous relatives in this section.

The college orchestra furnished the music.

CARRIED FORTY FEET

Highfield Man Carried to very Edge of Lake Royer.

It is estimated that the damage done this week by the storms at Highfield reached $7,000. Martin Frederick, Highfield, had one of the most thrilling experiences that has ever befallen him. While the storm was in its height, Mr. Frederick, in company with another man, but who was about 100 yards distant from him, was walking along the railroad tracks towards Lake Royer. Realizing that it would be impossible to get to cover, they made no effort. The cyclone struck Mr. Frederick full in the back, and to his great surprise, before he had time to think, it had deposited him at the edge of the lake, face downward, having carried him a distance of 40 feet. If he had been carried two feet farther Mr. Frederick would have been thrown into one of the deepest parts of the lake.

TO ENLARGE SENATE

Property Purchased for Erection of Building Containing 80 Rooms.

An interesting development of the hotel situation in Harrisburg came Friday in the announcement that James Russ had purchased the property on Market street next to the Senate and extending to River alley adjoining the Board of Trade Building. Negotiations have been pending for this purchase for some time and those who are interested in backing Mr. Russ, including several financial institutions, completed the purchase Thursday.

It is the intention of Mr. Russ to begin immediately the erection of an enlargement of his hotel, covering the entire plot from Market Square to River alley. It will be designed to conform to the architecture of the present hotel and will mean an increase of eighty rooms. Mr. Russ has been contemplating such an addition to his hotel for several years, but it was only recently that he was able through his financial backers to bring the matter to a successful issue.

EDGEMONT RESERVOIR

Portion Gives Way But Big Body of Water Is Still Confined There

A portion of one side of the large Hagerstown reservoir, near Edgemoat, gave way, Thursday night, and a large quantity of water poured down over the roads and fields close by. No dam was done. Inspectors from Hagerstown inspected the reservoir Thursday and found it to be unsafe. Residents below the reservoir were notified to be on the lookout in case the side of the reservoir broke. Fortunately the break was not as serious as feared, only a portion of the top of the one side having given way. The reservoir will be repaired at once and strengthened. The reservoir holds 150,000,000 gallons of water and there was much alarm felt by the people living near it and in the path of the stream should it break.

FRECKLES

Good Play Booked for Walter's Theatre, Tuesday, April 2.

The scene plot sent in advance to the theatre manager gives a pretty good idea of a theatrical offering. All really first-class attractions carry the greater part of their own scenery. A. G. Delamater's company presenting "Freckles" has requested the local management to remove all of the scenery belonging to the theatre from the stage to make room for the scenery, theatrical effects, stage furniture and properties carried by the company which appears at Walter's Wizard, Wednesday, April 2. advertisement.

DEATH LIST SHRINKS AS WATER GOES DOWN

Not More Than 200 Lost in Dayton.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

All Marooned People Have Been Removed.

PROPERTY LOSS DWINDLES

Exploration of much of flooded Dayton, made possible by the steadily receding waters, brought with it much encouragement, for as the relief parties penetrated farther and farther into the section in which the greatest loss of life had been feared, it became evident that the first reports of the number of fatalities were much exaggerated.

As the result of the search through the stricken city it was estimated that only 200 persons had lost their lives in the flood.

Hundreds of persons imprisoned by the inundation were taken from their perilous positions and fed and clothed. Many of the rescued were unable to move from exposure and lack of food. Fearful scenes were enacted when the members of severed families were reunited and the anxiety of three days was brought to an end.

All through Ohio and Indiana reports of deaths have been reduced. The receding of the waters released thousands of homes and food and shelter are afforded to all in need.

In Dayton the property loss from fire will not exceed $1,500,000. The damage caused to mercantile houses, factories and homes will run from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The force of National Guardsmen policing Dayton and other cities has been considerably increased, and the militiamen are in sufficient numbers to cope with any disorder or looting of which there are several cases reported.

Crippled train service in the flood district is being repaired rapidly and supplies are being rushed where they are most required. There is no danger of want on the part of the destitute, as the liberal reply of the country at large to the appeals for assistance has assured all of food and clothing.

Conditions in central and western New York state are the worst ever experienced in those regions. Part of the business section of Albany along the Hudson river is under water, and the New York Central railroad is unable to use a section of its main line and is sending trains over the Harlem division.

In the Ohio valley the flood reached its crest at Wheeling without any further loss of life. More than half the business and residential district at Parkersburg is under water and at Marietta the flood is sixteen feet deep on the main business street. The river is still rising at Cincinnati, but every thing movable has been taken out of the danger zone.

Conditions in Dayton brighter.

Dayton, O., March 29.—The flood situation in Dayton is this:

Previous estimates of the number drowned are greatly exaggerated.

The property loss from fire will not exceed a million and a half dollars.

The damage caused to mercantile houses, factories and residences will run anywhere from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The water has receded from the business section of the city and from a large portion of the residence section.

Residents in portions still inundated are being taken to sections not affected by the flood.

There is no lack of food. The telephone systems are being restored.

There is much suffering from cold but all available fuel has been appropriated and there is prospect of immediate relief.

So far there has been no epidemic of sickness.

One thousand militiamen have the city in rigid control, effectively preventing looting, sightseeing which will interfere with rescue work, and all disorder.

Touring the business sections, news paper men found the high stage of the flood was nine feet at the corner of Third and Main streets, which is in the very heart of the city. The on rushing water flooded the first floor of every store in the business district. This constitutes the chief financial loss.

The tower on the Steele high school was leveled and the Leonard building on Main street, was undermined so that it collapsed. Many houses were swept away in Riverdale, West Dayton, North Dayton and Edgemont.

The rushing waters overturned several houses there and rolled them over and over with their occupants inside.

In this vicinity several boats laden with the refugees were overturned both refugees and their would-be rescuers losing their lives.

Your eyes examined carefully without drops. Home Office 29 E. Pomfret St. Carlisle Branch Office, Pen Myer's Jewelry Store, Gettysburg. Every Tuesday.

W. H. DINKLE, Graduate of Optics.

In West Dayton there was considerable loss of life, but the latest figures are relatively unimportant as compared to the first estimates. In East Dayton, Dayton View and Oakwood the loss of life, Chief Allaback said was small.

In North Dayton, where the topography made the situation more dangerous than at any other point, relief parties penetrated and found that while there would be a large number of fatalities, the number of drowned was not likely to be relatively greater than in Riverdale.

The men also took relief to several hundred families in the low districts in the vicinity of Ludlow and Franklin streets. Here the water had reached the roofs of all the two-story buildings. Only a few of the most desperate cases were brought out.

The fire loss is limited to the destruction of the Dayton Gas Light and Coke company's plant, a row of two and three-story buildings on both sides of Third street, from Jefferson street to St. Clair avenue; the Troy-Pearl Laundry company's plant and two apartment house fires on the west side.

A big robbery was thwarted when the police arrested a man who was escaping from the city with a satchel containing $50,000 in diamonds and jewelry which had been stolen from downtown jewelry stores.

Money is of no use in Dayton for the present. Every facility is free to all without cost.

Refugees not living in Dayton are leaving the city by the hundreds on foot.

North Dayton's population consists largely of foreign born people. The first rescue parties took off many of these. The refugees conducted themselves in orderly fashion and aided their rescuers in every way.

Persons situated in the business section appear to have escaped except in a few instances.

RELIEF FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

Situation in Many Ohio Towns Improves as Water Goes Down.

Zanesville, O., March 29.—The toll of lives taken and property destroyed by the relentless rush of the waters of the Muskingum and Licking rivers appears to have been and remains a heavy one.

Zanesville realizes that she has suffered the greatest catastrophe in her history. The situation now appears to be well in hand. It will, however, be impossible to determine the loss of life until the waters recede from the bottom country.

City officials declare that fully 200 persons have met their death in the city and its environs, while the military who are in charge declare that the number will not go over 75. The food supply is almost exhausted. Only one bridge of the seven in the city across the Muskingum still remains intact.

Food and medicines are the principal requisites and until these come in the thousands of homeless and shivering people will suffer greatly.

With the search for flood victims in the muddy waters of the inundated West Side of Columbus scarcely begun, fourteen bodies were recovered.

Estimates of the flood death list in Columbus continue to range from 50 to 500, although these figures represent largely opinions of officials on duty in the flood zone. The efforts of the authorities have been directed almost entirely to relieving the suffering of those marooned in houses in the territory under water, and until all of these have been rescued the search for the dead will not begin in earnest. The waters receded slowly and the swirling currents abated a trifle, allowing the rescue boats a wider area of activity.

Officials of Chillicothe have made a thorough search of all flooded sections and declare the conditions are better than had been expected. The water has receded from the street and all public utilities have resumed operations. The homeless refugees are being cared for in the homes which withstood the flood and in the school houses. Provisions are plentiful and there is no disorder. Many citizens have been sworn in as deputy marshals.

It was definitely established that the total number of deaths in Chillicothe will not exceed fifteen. This is the number of the dead and missing. One hundred houses were washed away.

The property loss is about $1,000,000. Mayor Brinkman of Harrison, O., brought the first news to Cincinnati that has been received from his town, since it was isolated by the flood. He said the town was flooded to a great depth in many places, but that only one man, George Thomas, had lost his life. He estimated the property damage at $750,000.

Another flood-stricken village was heard from when Coroner Foerster of Cincinnati, was notified that thirty-two lives had been lost at Venice, in Butler county. The dead were members of five families.

Red Cross Gets $130,000 For Sufferers.

Washington, March 29.—Red Cross headquarters has received a total of $130,000 for the flood sufferers. The officials were informed that $100,000 had been contributed in Chicago, subject to the disposal of the headquarters here.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
phosphate powder:

68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

ALLENS EXECUTED IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Put to Death at Richmond For County House Murders.

Richmond, Va., March 29.—Floyd Allen and his son, Claude Swanson Allen, were put to death in the electric chair in the state penitentiary for their part in the Hillville court house murders. Other members of the notorious gang are serving long sentences in the same prison.

The Allens were put to death, after a dramatic eleventh hour attempt to save them had been thwarted by Governor Mann's unexpected return to the capital, thus preventing Lieutenant Governor Ellison from acting upon a request for a respite or commutation of sentence.

The old mountaineer, once the terror of a whole section of the Blue Ridge, and his strapping young son died within ten minutes of one another.

Father and son, occupying separate cells, heard the death warrants read. Tears were in Floyd Allen's eyes as he looked upon his boy. There was a pathetic farewell as the old mountaineer, bent and feeble, was led away. Two minutes after he entered the death chamber the signal was given and the current was turned on.

When the prison surgeon announced that Floyd Allen was dead the body was hastily removed and the guards went back for Claude. Floyd Allen was muttering a prayer as he was placed in the chair. Claude showed no trace of emotion. Rev. George W. McDaniel, spiritual adviser to the Allens, had to be lifted into his car as he left the prison.

The last attempt to save the Allens was spurning when, with Governor Mann on his way to Trenton, N. J., attorneys and sympathizers of the convicted men, appealed to Lieutenant Governor Ellison to commute the sentence of death.

Governor Mann at the last moment had again refused to interfere, and the warden of the penitentiary, doubtful of the authority of the lieutenant governor, called for an opinion from the attorney general, but meanwhile delayed the execution, which was set for sunrise.

Governor Mann's son, hearing of the plan to overturn the final decision of his father, intercepted the governor by telegraph. The governor immediately crossed the Potomac river to Virginia and telegraphed to Richmond: "I am the governor of Virginia and am in Virginia."

With that Governor Mann hurried back to Richmond. The streets about the railroad station were packed, as guarded by police and detectives, he was whisked off to the state house, where he issued this statement:

"Hearing of the action taken in the Allen cases after I had left the city, I considered it my duty to hurry back. I simply desire to repeat that, after the most careful examination of the evidence in these cases, I have not the slightest doubt of the guilt of Floyd and Claude Allen and I will not interfere. The law must take its course."

Claude Allen is said to have collapsed in his cell when told that the plan had failed, and his father, whose nerves had been badly shaken, showed some effects from the announcement.

A gold medal, purchased by sympathizers, which was to be presented to Claude "for defending his father," was unrepresented and in the warden's safe when the youth went to the chair. One of the lines of his defense was that he shot while defending his father against attack by court officers.

Every attempt to save the Allens, including efforts to have the supreme court of the United States review the case, had been made.

THE FLOOD IN WESTERN PENNA.

Fifteen Lives Lost and Thousands Homeless.

SHARON CHIEF SUFFERER

Property Loss Is Placed at $25,000,000.
Industrial Plants Closed and 50,000 Are Idle.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 29.—Fifteen lives and a property loss which may total $25,000,000, are the tolls exacted by the most devastating flood in the history of western Pennsylvania.

Thousands of families are homeless, their homes being flooded, while business in many sections is at a standstill. Railroads and street car lines have suspended traffic, while industries employing thousands of men are idle.

In Sharon more than ten lives were sacrificed, according to the best information from that place. The property loss there will be $2,000,000. The local relief committee will be able to cope with the situation, its president announces, and an offer of $5000 from a member of the chamber of commerce was refused. A rescue boat sent to the home of Mrs. Mary Wilding, of Vine street, upset as she was being removed and she was drowned.

In New Castle 1000 families are camping out, their homes having been swept away by the rushing waters of the Shenango river and the Nesheanock creek, which have held their place in their grip for the past three days.

The loss in the Beaver valley district will be enormous. Hundreds of families are huddled in second stories of their homes, the water reaching a depth of several feet on the first stories.

From the latest reports received from Oil City, Titusville, Meadville and other distant points, the flood is receding slowly.

The Ohio reached 30.5 feet and is now stationary. Information from upriver points on the Allegheny, from which the flood came is that the river has commenced to fall.

The Ohio, Allegheny, Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers, with their many tributaries, are out of their banks and spreading a heavy sheet of water over the lowlands.

A wide stretch is inundated and several thousand persons have been driven from their homes. Scores of industrial plants, located along the river banks, are under water and there are easily 50,000 persons out of work in the Pittsburgh district. In the business section of the city pumps are forcing the water from the cellars of every building, while the sidewalks are piled high with goods removed to escape the water.

BULGARS ACCEPT OFFER OF MEDIATION

The Allies Break Through the Tchataija Lines.

London, March 29.—Bulgaria has accepted the offer of mediation made by the European powers, but with provisions that practically negative the proposals of the powers.

Bulgaria persists in her demand for a war indemnity and declines to agree to the suggested frontier running from Midia, on the Black sea, to Enos, on the Aegean sea, asserting that a frontier line from Midia to the Gulf of Saros, at the top of the peninsula of Gallipoli, is the only concession she is willing to make.

A dispatch from Sofia to the Politische Correspondenz, of Vienna, says the Balkan allies have agreed to accept the terms offered by the European powers as a basis for peace negotiations.

A Central News dispatch from Sofia says the Bulgarians have broken through the Turkish defenses at Tchatalja and that the way into Constantinople lies open before them. Following the capture of the village of Tchatalja the Bulgarians and Servians executed a flank movement against the Turkish left wing which is said to have been successful. Bulgarian batteries were moved forward and the Turkish defenders were driven toward Constantinople.

The Bulgarians took 51,000 prisoners at Adrianople, including 1220 officers, 90 of whom were foreigners. The Bulgarian loss was placed at 5000 killed and wounded.

Montenegrins Attack Scutari. Belgrade, Servia, March 29.—The Montenegrin army opened a fierce attack on all sides of the fortress of Scutari by order of King Nicholas.

NOT GUILTY, SAYS MRS. EATON

Prisoner Will Await Trial in Jail Until June Session.

Boston, March 29.—Mrs. Jennie May Eaton pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree when arraigned at Plymouth under the indictment returned by the Plymouth county grand jury, charging her with poisoning her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton. She was held by Judge Dabague without bail for trial in June.

Her attorneys were not allowed the privilege of waiving the reading of the warrant indictment, and for several minutes Mrs. Eaton stood at the left of the prisoner's cage in the dock without outward show of emotion while the court clerk read the indictment.

FRECKLES

NOTE THE FOLLOWING COMMENTS UPON "FRECKLES" BY REPUTABLE NEWSPAPERS.

The play is one of sentiment, romance, intrigue and humor, and makes a personal appeal to each spectator.—Washington, (D. C.) Post.

I know of no character in modern play-writing endowed with such simple nobility and wonderful sweetness.—New York Sun.

FRECKLES makes a suitable drama of adventure, conflict and love; of gentle sentiment, yet intense.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

FRECKLES is a hit and Delamater scores another big winner.—Chicago News.

FRECKLES is a play for the worldly and unworldly, as remarkably appealing in dramatic form as it proved as a novel.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The play deserves chief praise for the skill by which every character is made to appear as having stepped right out of the book, and yet it is a strong enough drama in itself without reference to the novel.—Boston Herald.

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER, Author of "A Girl of the Limberlost" and "The Harvester"

Dramatized by NEIL TWOMEY

"FRECKLES" is a wonderful nature story of the Limberlost region, telling the struggles of a brave lad working against tremendous odds. It is a play full of love, venture tender pathos, and delightful humor, interspersed throughout with beautiful music and tuneful song numbers.

COLUMBUS, O., FLOOD.

Showing District Inundated and Where Many Drowned.

The interstate commerce commission has recently decided that chickens are not "live stock." The decision was rendered in a case appealed to the commission by a man named Ream, who sought to secure free fare for himself as caretaker of twelve hens that were being shipped from Richmond, Va., to Los Angeles, Cal. He worked his bluff as far as El Paso, Tex., at which point the railroad refused to let him ride without paying full fare. He demanded that the commission compel the railroad to refund the amount paid in fare, but they refused to support him in his contention, and the above verdict was their decision in the matter.

Both parents and teachers in school should unite in an earnest endeavor to cultivate on the part of the boys and girls a habit of carefulness and thoroughness in tasks that are undertaken. It will aid in the inculcation of this habit if there is emphasized the thought that any work undertaken is worth doing as well as one knows how to do it. Carelessness and sloppiness—if there is such a word—in those who are hired to do work is the bane alike of the housewife, the farmer and the merchant. On the other hand, there is nothing that gives more satisfaction than having helpers who do their tasks neatly and carefully. It is this difference in the way of doing things that largely accounts for the fact that some people succeed in life and others make a good deal of a fizzle of it.

One of the most encouraging as well as most valuable services being rendered by the department of agriculture in its entire realm of activity is found in connection with the farmers' co-operative demonstration work which has been carried on in a number of southern states under the direction of Professor Knapp of the bureau of plant industry. More than 100,000 adult farmers of the south have been directly enrolled in this demonstration work, while 70,000 boys have been enrolled in the corn growing clubs and 20,000 have been enrolled in the girls' canning clubs. With the adult farmers special emphasis has been placed upon the importance of crop rotation, and the growing of more corn, peas, velvet beans, cowpeas, alfalfa and other clovers has been encouraged. Greater interest has also been aroused in hog raising, dairying and other forms of animal industry. The farmers have been encouraged to build silos and to establish pastures and to make a more effective war on the cattle tick.

SHE WAS A CREOLE.

Her Visitor Was Sorry For That Until He Was Enlightened.

It was snowing in the north, but in New Orleans the air was as soft as May, and in a garden brilliant with flowers and sunshine the winter visitors drank after luncheon the famous creole coffee.
"How good this creole coffee is!" said a young man.
"I make it," said the hostess. "I am, you know, a creole."
The young man looked shocked, hurt. "Well, after all," he said in a low voice, "you can't help that, and I'm sure no sensible person thinks any the worse of you."
His hostess, who was very beautiful, with hair and eyes like night, laughed merrily.
"Define the word 'creole,'" she said. And the young man replied, "A creole is a descendant of French or Spanish immigrants, with a touch of negro blood in his or her veins."
"And the word means just the opposite!" the woman cried. "A creole is a descendant of French or Spanish immigrants whose veins hold not a drop of negro blood."
"Well, well! I didn't know that."
"No," she said. "Nobody from the north does. The word 'creole' is probably the unique word of the dictionary, a word that is universally misunderstood. Why, it is as though you thought up there in the north that white meant black."—New York Tribune.

AN EARLY PURE FOOD LAW.

English Bakers Had to Be Careful in the Old Days.

In the time of Edward I. of England bakers were not permitted to make either bread or beer. The former they were allowed by law to buy from the baker and the latter from the brewer in "Customs of Old England" F. J. Snell declares that if the law defended what was considered the legitimate claim of the baker to a proper livelihood it was equally solicitous for the welfare of his customers and was most severe upon the baker who sold bread deficient in weight or quality.

For the first offense he was drawn on a hurdle through the principal streets, which would be thronged with people and foul with traffic, with the offending loaf suspended from his neck. From a pen and ink sketch of this ceremony it appears that the unhappy tradesman wore neither shoes nor stockings and had his arms strapped to his sides. It seems also that two horses drew the hurdle, which suggested that it rattled along at a pretty lively pace.

For the second offense the baker enjoyed another ride upon the hurdle and then underwent an hour's exposure in the pillory. If he proved so incorrigible as to commit the offense a third time his oven was demolished and he was forbidden to follow his trade.

Cheapest Hams Ever Sold.

Sometimes an error creeps into the published announcement of a big store, due to the negligence of the proofreader or to the compositor in the printing office of the paper. It is rarely funny in its results, although it may make humorous reading when first issued. One day a department store in New York advertised "Sugar Cured Hams at 4c a lb." Rather cheap, you say? Well, 130 odd persons thought so too, for that was the number that asked for the ham at this ridiculously low price the morning the ad appeared. It transpired that the printed proof O. K'd by the grocery buyer and sent down to the newspaper office for insertion in the day's issue read "14c a lb." The first numeral had simply dropped out of sight; 125 sales were made at a loss of 10 cents per pound.—Woman's Home Companion.

To Clean Brass.

An excellent way of cleaning brass flowerpots or trays is to rub them well with a piece of lemon, then pour boiling water over them and finally polish them with a soft dry cloth. You will find that the lemon will remove all the stains from the crevices in the brass.

THE CUTTLEFISH.

Its Queer Ink Sac and Its Ability to Change Its Color.

Sepia is a peculiar animal substance obtained from the ink bags or ink sacs of cuttlefish.

The cuttlefish are a group of singular sea creatures allied to slugs, snails, oysters and other so-called "shell fish." The cuttlefish has a sort of shell beneath the skin (sold under the name of "cuttlebone"), a pair of large eyes and a horny beak. Like all molluscs, they have no real limbs at all, but from around the head there spring eight or ten long tentacles, each armed with numerous suckers.

By forcibly squirting out the sea water which it has taken in the sepia can shoot backward through the water with great speed. The sepia is interesting, too, as being able to change its color in a measure so as to harmonize with its surroundings. Just under the topmost layer of skin there are distributed all over the surface of the body a number of cells, containing a dark pigment. When these cells are expanded the surface of the body becomes darkly spotted, but as they are contracted the creature looks paler.

Though best developed in the sepia and its nearest allies, nearly every member of the cuttlefish group possesses an ink sac. The ink sac contains the dark pigment secreted by a special gland. When discovered or pursued by an enemy the sepia discharges some of its ink through a sort of funnel or tube. The pigment mixes with water very quickly and forms a dark cloud of ink water, beyond which the sepia will dart into safety.

Sepias are often caught in nets with fish. The fishermen, despising the cuttlefish, throw them out upon the beach, and then they may be seen lying in tiny pools of dense black liquid and continually exuding more ink in a vain attempt at concealment.—Chicago Tribune.

JURIST PLUNGES TO DEATH

Justice Bischoff, of New York Supreme Court, Goes 11 Stories Down Shaft.

New York, March 29.—Justice Henry Bischoff of the New York state supreme court, plunged eleven stories down an elevator shaft to his death in the Immigrant Savings bank building, where he had offices.

The justice was a trifle near-sighted and it is believed that as he left his chambers he stumbled over a piece of carpet and fell through a low window opening into the shaft. When picked up he was dead.

Justice Bischoff was sixty years old, and had been on the supreme court bench since 1896.

A PETTY TYRANT

By MARGARET BARR

In Italy they celebrate the anniversary of the evacuation of the country by the Austrians much as we Americans celebrate the Fourth of July.

On one of these anniversaries two ladies were walking on a street in Milan. They were Austrian tourists of high degree, one of them the Countess Camilla. Being citizens of that empire which had lost its hold on Italy, it is not to be expected that they would feel any sympathy with the celebration.

While passing some persons who were firing explosives a man set off a pack of firecrackers, several of which snapped on to the countess's dress, burning holes in it. She was in no mood for such a misfortune and resolved on being revenged on the Italian who had occasioned it. Calling on a policeman, she showed him the damage that had been done, pointed to the perpetrator and demanded his arrest, that she might recover damages. The policeman agreed to do her bidding if she would accompany them. She consented, and the three went to the station, which happened to be only a block away.

The officer in charge suggested that since the judge before whom the case would be tried was then holding court and the ladies desired to leave Milan the next morning they go at once before him and see if they could not get it disposed of without delay. This pleased the irate countess, and they went to the courtroom.

Now, a gentleman who had been walking the streets enjoying the celebration had witnessed the accident and followed the parties first to the police station and thence to the courtroom. There he listened with marked attention to the proceedings. The lady claimed that the dress was worth 1,000 lira, or $200. She had bought it in Milan only the day before and summoned the merchant who sold it to her to bear witness to the price paid. This established her claim, and, as to the man who had burned it, he confessed that he had done so, but accidentally.

The judge ordered him to pay for the dress, but he said that he was a workman and without any means whatsoever.

He offered to bind himself to pay by installments, but the lady, who was revengeful rather than needy, declined to accept such terms. The judge thereupon said that in default of payment and costs the poor fellow must go to jail until he could raise the money.

"Then," said the man, "I shall have to remain in jail, for there is no possible way in which I can raise such a sum except by working for it, and I need all I can earn to support myself and my family."

The judge endeavored to persuade the lady to be lenient, but she declared that the man could pay if he would, and she would make no compromise.

"In that case," said the judge, "I have no discretion in the matter but to send the man to jail."

At this point the gentleman who had followed the party stepped forward and said to the judge, "I will pay the lady the 1,000 lira she paid for the dress, but in that case it will be mine, will it not?"

The judge ruled that it would. The lady, whose ire had had time to cool, seemed willing to accept the solution, and the stranger, taking out a pocket-book, handed her the money and paid the costs. Then he said:

"Judge, I know who this lady is, for I have met her at court in Vienna, though she does not remember me. Her ire at the man who unintentionally burned her dress was occasioned by the fact that our people are today celebrating the expulsion of our former masters, her countrymen. She has treated the unfortunate man with great rigor, and I propose to be equally exacting. The dress she wears is mine, and I demand it immediately."

The countess, somewhat abashed at this speech, said that she would deliver the dress as soon as she could go to the hotel and replace it with another one.

"You refused," said the stranger, "to give this man time, and I refuse to give you time. I demand my property."

The lady looked at the judge to learn if he would support that demand. The judge had already recognized the stranger and with great deference to him said that he had a right to compel the immediate delivery of his property.

"What!" exclaimed the countess. "Do you mean to force me to disrobe here?"

"You showed no mercy," replied the purchaser, "and I will show you none."

"And if I refuse your insolent demand?" she asked, looking again at the judge.

"I shall send you to jail," replied the latter.

There was a knot that only the purchaser could cut. He did it by making the lady an offer of her dress for 2,500 lira. Since she must either accept it or appear in public without it she angrily consented. The stranger took the money and handed it to the man who had burned the dress, saying at the same time to the lady:

"My object, countess, has been simply to save this man from your tyranny. Just such as our people have suffered from your Austrian government. I bid you good morning."

"Who is he?" asked the lady after he had gone.

"Prince Umberto," said the judge.

The countess related the story to a doctor, new to the gun, who adventured upon a day's rabbit shooting.

Chased by the ferrets, bunny was a rather quick moving target, and the medico was not meeting with the success he anticipated.

"Hang it all, man," he exclaimed impatiently to the keeper who accompanied him; "these beasts are too quick for me!"

"Aye, doctor," the pawky keeper replied, "but ye surely didn't expect them to be still like yer patients till ye kilt them?"
